HUSK

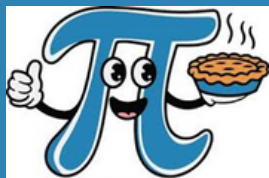

Husk is 11 years old and is currently in 5th grade. Having been with us since Kindergarten, they are one of our longest standing members at CC. Husk's favorite thing about CC is playing outside on the swings. At first, they thought their favorite school subject was Social Studies, but the unit ended and they quickly changed their mind to Science. The reasoning was, because they get to talk about snakes and stingrays and they have a good relationship with their teacher as they listen to them. Husk's favorite book is "Survival Strategies for the Almost Brave". They recently were in a dream they were in a zombie apocalypse with their bestie Ari. They went to Costco and survived despite toxic farts that were also plaguing them.

Husk's favorite thing to do outside of school is going to Drew's house and going out to the Desert to explore. Their best accomplishments in elementary are, getting into M.A.S. and being friends Ari and Drew since kindergarten.

For now, Husk wants to go to college. They want to attend the University of Colorado to study psychology to become a therapist. Husk says, "The University of Colorado is rated the best".

Husk's one piece of advice to a kindergartener would be, "If you feel anything bad for a while go to a therapist". This is important to Husk because they would like the future fifth graders to be mentally stable.

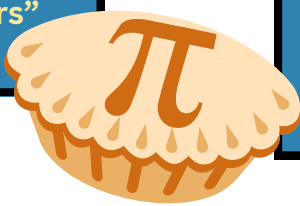

Pi Day Traditions

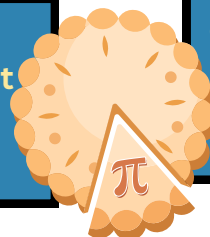

Pi, like many Children's Choice traditions, is a constant. In fact, we even have a Bandelier Pi day tradition! The kiddo that can recite the most digits of pi, gets to put a pie in a staff's face! With this amazing prize, we had many participants who wanted to try to recite the highest number. There were many strategies on display including: guessing, singing and memorization. In the end, it was memorization by our 5th grader Nate with the win. Nate was able to recite 23 digits of pi! The pleasure of the pie in the face was awarded to Ashleigh! After Ashleigh took a full pie in the face, we practiced another Bandelier Pi Day tradition; 5th grader pie in the face! 5th graders get to celebrate their final Pi Day of elementary school with pieing each other in the face! And, it's all in good clean fun, because they are no ordinary pies, but rather shaving cream pies!!

"I was practicing for many years"
-Nate

"We have a whole year to practice and study for next year!"
-Izzy, Daphne, and Etta

"Was it shaving cream or whipped cream?"
-Izzy

Spring Break Adventures

Tea Club Adventure

The Bandelier Tea Club continues to meet weekly to explore different tea variations and learning proper tea etiquette. As a Spring Break treat, we were inspired by Tea Club and went to Snapdragon Tea, to attend proper tea session. We had our very own tea sommelier who gave us knowledge on the tea variety and the tasty tea snacks also. Tea Club was inspired by this field trip to focus more on their own tea snacks.

Kitten Playdate at Hyder Park!

We walked to the park to meet Milo and the kittens he has been raising for a kitty play date!
We pet, held and wished the kittys a good 9 lives!

Milo explains how to hold them and read their body language.

Meow

"I was trying to hold it very careful as it is just a baby"
